Background Introduction

Why have we produced this settlement profile for Bodmin?

Increasingly, we need good data to target programmes to the right areas, support funding applications, and help local communities with the evidence-base to support the development of community and parish plans.

However, although there is a great deal of data available for the smaller settlements (villages, hamlets, smaller towns and so on) across the South West, this information is rarely brought together in a single document for each of the settlements. Profiles of areas tend to be produced for Local Authorities or larger urban areas.

The South West ACRE Network (SWAN) of rural community councils commissioned Oxford Consultants for Social Inclusion (OCSI) to develop a set of profile reports for each of the smaller rural settlements across the South West.

What does this report contain?

This profile report provides detailed datasets developed and collected by OCSI for Bodmin, which lies in North Cornwall district, and has a population of 14182.

Alongside data on Bodmin, we also provide data for the County and Region.

The sections in this report cover:

- Key indicators in Bodmin
- Population Who lives in Bodmin?
- Economy and employment Who is working in Bodmin? What are skill levels like?
- Economy and employment What jobs are people doing?
- Deprivation and low income Social exclusion in Bodmin

- Health in Bodmin
- Access to services in Bodmin
- Housing in Bodmin
- Indicator definitions (Appendix A)
- Settlements in the South West region (Appendix B)

The South West Rural Deprivation study

These profiles have been developed under the South West Rural Deprivation study, which has strengthened the evidence-base to support rural work across the region. Outputs from the full study include:

- Where are the most deprived rural areas?
- What is the rural share of deprivation?
- Profiles of the smaller settlements across the South West
- Access to services in the South West
- Who's there? Daytime populations in rural areas

What indicators have we used?

See Appendix A for definitions of the indicators used in this report.

What is a "settlement"?

We have used the Office for National Statistics Output Area definitions of settlements to develop these profiles. Our data for Bodmin is based on these Output Area level definitions, so may include very small areas that lie outside the 'real' settlement boundary.

See Appendix B for more detail, including the list of settlements for which we have developed profiles.

Worklessness

Being out of work can have a severe impact on an individual's quality of life – both in terms of the economic implications and in terms of the wider social exclusion implications. The impacts will be felt not only by the individual, but also by partners and dependent children.

Deprivation and low income Social exclusion in Bodmin

Household incomes in rural areas are on average higher than in urban areas. Nevertheless, research over the last 25 years has consistently identified in the region of 20-25% rural households living in poverty, with higher levels in sparse and coastal areas¹.

Index of Multiple Deprivation

Based on the Index of Multiple Deprivation, rural areas across England are not highly deprived. Of the 6,496 most deprived areas across England, only 143 (2%) are rural.

- Analysis based on the IMD 2004 modelled down to Output Area (OA) level² indicates across Bodmin, there are 22 areas in the most deprived 20% of all areas in the region. This represents 51.2% of the settlement's population living in areas identified as among the most deprived 20% in the region

Working age claimants

Although no single indicator encapsulates the different dimensions of deprivation and exclusion for people in rural areas, the Working Age Client Group benefits dataset from DWP provides a general measure for those of working age, covering low income, employment and health issues. The table on the right identifies:

- 1,538 people in Bodmin are receiving some form of DWP benefit, 18.6% of the working age population

Low Income

People living on a low income are among the most deprived groups in society. A person or household living on a low income may be out of work, or in work but on low pay. The table below highlights:

- Based on the Index of Multiple Deprivation, 2,525 people across Bodmin are income deprived (18.4% of all people)
- Children and older people are typically more vulnerable to low income. Across Bodmin, 26.4% of all children live in income deprived households (743 children). 20.7% of older people in rural areas receive the Pension Credit Guarantee Element (corresponding to 636 older people)

Health in Bodmin

Health

Health is a fundamental determinant of quality of life, having a direct impact on an individual's ability to live a fulfilling and enjoyable life and also indirectly impacting on their ability to sustain standards of living through income.

Ill health may also have a severe effect on other people, either directly through changing relationships (for example forcing people into informal unpaid care), or through indirect effects such as change in household income

- 1,599 people in Bodmin report themselves as having a limiting long-term illness, 15.0% of the population (compared with 13.5% of people across Cornwall and Isles of Scilly)
- DWP health benefit data shows that 501 older people in Bodmin receive Attendance Allowance (16.7% of all older people)
- Across Bodmin, 1,003 people receive Disability Living Allowance (7.1% of all people)

Access to services in Bodmin

Access to services is a major factor in quality of life for people in rural communities, where lack of transport can be a primary cause of social exclusion³.

People are at risk from social exclusion where necessary services such as hospitals, education, employment and training centres, or food stores, are not easily accessible. This is especially likely to present difficulties for people without cars or who are unable to drive, whose mobility is limited, and in areas where public transportation is poor:

- 1,273 households have no car or van, 24.0% of all households in Bodmin
- Access to education, training and employment: No households are more than 8km from job centres, no households are more than 8km from secondary schools.
- Access to healthcare: No households are more than 8km from a principal GP site

Housing in Bodmin

Overcrowded households, and households lacking central heating

Nationally, rural housing is more likely to be in non-decent condition than housing in urban areas. Across England, the percentage of households living in 'non-decent homes'⁴ is 34% in rural areas, compared with 28% in urban areas⁵.

There is no published data on the number of non-decent homes in Bodmin. Data on those households lacking central heating and overcrowded households can give an indication of where housing conditions may play a role in exclusion. There are also links with fuel poverty issues –people in households lacking central heating are more likely to experience fuel poverty.

Across Bodmin:

- 653 households lack central heating (12.3% of all households). 370 households are overcrowded
- Social housing levels are higher in Bodmin than across Cornwall and Isles of Scilly, with 1,141 households renting from the Local Authority or Registered Social Landlords (21.6% of all households)

Appendix B: Settlements in the South West region

The Office for National Statistics Settlement definitions

The Office for National Statistics Settlement definitions are based on physical extent, rather than by any administrative boundaries. Settlements must be at least 20 hectares in extent with “continuous built-up areas of land containing urban structures”. In other words, the settlements identify cities, towns and villages as defined by their visible boundaries, with boundaries ending where the green fields begin.

The ONS have developed settlement boundaries for all settlements with a population of more than 300 people, with look-up tables for Output Areas (standard statistical geographies).

As little data is available at Output Area level (essentially, only Census 2001 data is available), we have developed lookup tables for Super Output Area to the settlements, and have developed profile reports for those rural settlements with more than 300 people (those settlements with populations greater than 10,000 are defined as “urban”, and are included for completeness).

We have developed profiles for all settlements in the South-West
